

Service Animals Policy

Definition: Service Animals are individually trained to perform tasks and functions that benefit people with disabilities or that people with disabilities cannot perform for themselves.

Animals functioning only to provide comfort or emotional support do not qualify as “Service Animals”. A Service Animal is not a pet.

La Sierra University is committed to compliance with state and federal laws regarding individuals with disabilities. All questions regarding service animals should be directed to Documentation is not required to bring service animals into academic buildings on campus. However, the University may ask 1) Is the dog a service animal required because of a disability, and (2) What work or task has the dog been trained to perform.

Policy

Service Animals on Campus

Individuals with disabilities may be accompanied by their service animals in all La Sierra University buildings where members of the public or participants in services, programs or activities are allowed to go. By law, a service animal means any dog that is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability, including a physical, sensory, psychiatric, intellectual, or other mental disability. Other species of animals, whether wild or domestic, trained or untrained, are not service animals. In some cases, the University may permit miniature horses on campus on a case-by-case basis, consistent with applicable law.

The work or tasks performed by a service animal must be directly related to the individual's disability. Examples of such tasks include, but are not limited to: assisting an individual with low vision with navigation; alerting individuals who are hard of hearing to the presence of people or objects; pulling a person's wheelchair; or providing assistance with stability or balance to an individual with a mobility disability.

Federal law does not require the individual to provide documentation that an animal has been trained as a service animal. The University may, however, ask if the animal is required because of a disability, as well as what work or task the animal has been trained to perform.

Exceptions

The University may exclude a service animal from campus if its behavior poses a direct threat to the health or safety of others or when its presence fundamentally alters the nature of a program or activity. Furthermore, the University may ask an individual with a disability to remove a service animal from campus if the animal is out of control and the individual does not take effective action to control it; or if the animal is not housebroken. The service animal is considered an extension of the student and thus, is subject to the same code of conduct as a student would follow. Disruptive behavior by a service animal will be grounds for removal from an academic setting in the same manner that a disruptive student will be removed from the same environment.

Responsibilities of Individuals with Service Animals

- La Sierra University is not responsible for the care or supervision of a service animal. Individuals with disabilities are responsible for the control of their service animals at all times and must comply with all applicable laws and regulations, including vaccination, licensure, animal health and leash laws.
- A service animal shall be restrained with a harness, leash, or other tether, unless an individual's disability prevents the use of a restraint or if the restraint would interfere with the service animal's safe, effective performance of work or tasks. If a service animal is not tethered, it must be otherwise under the individual's control, whether by voice control, signals, or other effective means.

- Individuals are responsible for ensuring the immediate cleanup and proper disposal of all animal waste. Although the University may not charge an individual with a disability a service animal deposit, it may impose charges for damages caused by a service animal in the same manner the University imposes charges for damages caused by students.
